More Spanish-American Members in Coming House Than for Many Past Legislative Sessions.

Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 12.—A statement from Secretary of State Larson today, following adjournment of the state canvassing board for this week, shows the make-up of the next house of representatives, as follows:

Republicans ..... 33

Democrats ..... 13

The returns show that the percentage of Spanish-Americans in this house will be the largest for a number of sessions past.

The canvassing board today completed returns for 12 counties and adjourned until Monday when the balance will be completed. In the 13 counties for which returns are incomplete, a total of 39 precincts are still to be heard from. These are not sufficient to affect the result as 15 states of legislative candidates.

AUTOMOBILES NEEDED FOR EVERY DAY WORK OF THE CAMPAIGN

Automobiles are needed for the Y. M. C. A. committees. It has proved easy enough to get cars for a single day, but 24 cars available at all times has been a more difficult proposition.

Chairman H. Perry of the automobile committee said today that in more cars could be used to advantage and he calls for volunteers.

"We have had a few cars available at all times," said Mr. Perry this morning. "But what we need for the remainder of this campaign is 24 cars which we can had, and which will be on the job at all times. We need them badly and volunteers will be given a very cordial welcome."

Mr. Perry can be found at the Y. M. C. A. headquarters during the afternoon, or may be called at telephone 415 at any time.

GERMAN DISCIPLINE HAS SEVERE TEST

(Associated Press Correspondence) Berlin, Oct. 27.—Prince Joachim of Prussia, youngest son of the emperor, went to visit the camp of the British prisoners of war at Duxbury, near Berlin, the day before his departure for the front. He was accompanied by the Princess August Wilhelmine and a lady of the court. At the entrance to the camp they were met by the sergeant of the guard.

"Very sorry, sir, but our orders are to admit no one to the camp without a special pass from the commandant," General Von Loewell.

"But you know who I am?"

"Oh, yes, your Imperial Highness, but our orders apply also to you." The guards turned out were quite within their orders, for General Von Loewell, a veteran of 1870, in instructing the jundhans battalions regarding the camp as to their duties, had ordered them to admit nobody without his explicit order, "not even his majesty himself."

ORTIZ SAYS ELY CLAIMS GARCIA IS DEFEATED

Republican Candidate Exhibits Lengthy Letter from Republican State Chairman Which He Says Claims His Victory.

Modesto, Calif., Nov. 12.—Representatives of the legislature in the recent unpleasants, and who was defeated on the face of the return by 19 votes by Rafael Garcia, Democrat, exhibited a letter at the county courthouse this morning which he said was from Chairman Ralph C. Ely of the Republican state committee and in which he asserted Mr. Ely assured him that Mr. Ortiz had been elected. Ortiz did not read the letter to the interested assemblage, contenting himself with exhibiting it. It appeared to cover two closely written pages and when asked why it required that much space to tell him he was elected, Ortiz explained that Mr. Ely was making suggestions on proposed legislation. Ortiz was asked if the letter also did not explain to him how to go about filing a contest, but to this no definite reply could be elicited.

COTTON EXCHANGE MEN DISCUSS NEW LAW WITH FEDERAL OFFICERS

Washington, Nov. 12.—Representatives of the New York cotton exchange discussed regulations for the administration of the new cotton futures law here today with officials of the departments of agriculture and the treasury. R. C. Davis, chairman of the spot delivery committee of the exchange, said that the regulations so tentatively drawn were "absolutely against" the early reopening of the cotton exchange.

President E. K. Cone, A. H. Gwinnett, Jr., and Mr. Curtis appeared for the New York cotton exchange and discussed in detail the proposed regulations, the object of which is to enforce the use of a contract for the purchase and sale of cotton which will comply with the new law. Contracts made in accordance with the regulations will be exempt from the prohibitory tax of two cents a pound imposed by the law on "future" transactions.

The exchange representatives objected to a ruling which would force the inclusion in each contract for the sale of cotton a statement of the exact quantity of cotton involved. They urged that a variation of one cent be allowed, in order to account for variations of weight in different bales of cotton. They objected to a provision prohibiting the delivery of "gin cut" cotton and asserted that it was customary to accept such cotton when the cutting did not depreciate the value beyond half a cotton grade. Treasury officials pointed out that the law itself prohibited the delivery of gin cut cotton.

of the sea. How they can operate in this locality if British and French warships still are standing guard off the shore is not quite clear to British observers. For sometime past there has been no mention of naval activity on this coast, but it has been assumed that this was explained by the reported German retirement from the coast of France and Belgium and the news that they were delivering their cargoes further to the south.
